
Main Street Inc. to host guest speaker

It seems everyone in Franklin County has a comment – about basketball, the weather and when the fish in the lake are finally going to bite. Public forums are not always available.

Brookville's Main Street Committee is establishing a forum for the comments, critiques and dreams of our community about our most identifiable landmark – Main Street.

On Wednesday, March 24 at 6 p.m., Brookville Main Street will hold a public meeting at Mounds Restaurant. Dana Riddle of Southeastern Indiana Regional Planning Commission will be the featured speaker. Riddle has been involved with several Main Street projects and serves as a consultant to Brookville's steering committee.

Hosted by the Lion's Club, the Mounds will provide a buffet meal for $10.50 per person. The menu includes: roast beef, fried chicken, mashed potatoes and gravy, green beans, glazed carrots, rolls, lemonade, coffee and iced tea.

Riddle's presentation will begin at 7 p.m. The Main Street Committee has been busy writing by-laws, applying for an Indiana Department of Commerce grant and filling out the necessary paperwork for a non-profit designation. Now, the dreams can begin along with the hard work.

Through public meetings, the Main Street Committee will identify volunteers to help shape the plan for the Main Street of today and the future.
